

ASSESSOR QUALIFICATION

Assess Learner Achievement in the Workplace Using Direct and Indirect Methods (J8RR O4)

This qualification is also a Professional Development Award - Workplace Assessment Using Direct and Indirect Methods at SCQF level 8 (GV90 48)

Quest have delivered assessor training since 2002 – previously called D32/33, A1 and LD9DI and from August 2025 we are working with the new Qualifications Scotland qualifications for assessing.

By undertaking an Assessor qualification you will be able to demonstrate you are competent to assess SVQs, other regulated workplace qualifications or in-company standards. You need to be competent in the area you assess and you must work with 2 learners for 2 units/competencies each.

To achieve the assessor qualification you'll be expected to show you can assess learners using direct and indirect methods. This includes preparing to assess, planning assessments, assessing learner performance and knowledge and confirming progression and achievement.

If you only assess by observation and asking questions there is another more suitable assessor qualification at SCQF Level 7.

When undertaking the qualification with Quest will also have the following support mechanisms:

- Half day induction (usually delivered remotely)
- Online portfolio
- One-to-one meetings with your assessor
- Contact with your assessor via email, phone, Teams or face to face
- Observation of you interacting with your candidates and providing constructive feedback
- Unlimited support up to 1 year

It is ideal if you can shadow an assessor for your area of expertise prior to starting. The induction would be best scheduled when you have two learners to assess.

Contact Laura@questscotland.co.uk for more information.